

MARCIA J. BIANCHI

Marcia Bianchi is a contemporary figurative artist based in Toronto, Canada. Her work has evolved since pursuing a career in graphic design, when she began fusing the design principles with canvas. Heavily influenced by psychology and the exploration of the mind, her intention is to create pieces that reflect our collective psyche.

Bianchi graduated from the University of Toronto and continued to develop her practice as studio assistant to Canadian Painter, Michael Adamson. Since then, she has completed a studio residency with Akin Collective at Auto BLDG in the Museum of Contemporary Art Toronto, and most recently one at the Berlin Art Institute in Germany. She has participated in multiple exhibitions, most notably, a digital billboard in Times Square, New York City, with Artist Talk Magazine in 2022 and again in 2023. She is an active member of both, Tacit Collective and Peggy, and prints of her work are sold in the gift shop at the Art Gallery of Ontario. She also sat on the board of directors at Gallery 1313 in Toronto throughout 2023. Her practice continues to evolve as she explores mediums and muses.